

Survey on Mobility and Work of Women in Luanda

This research is part of an academic study dedicated to understanding the mobility, work, and safety conditions of women engaged in informal activities in Luanda, such as street vendors and market stallholders. The objective is to gather information that will allow for the analysis of the challenges faced in their daily lives and the identification of priorities that can guide fairer and more effective public policies and support practices.

Participation is entirely voluntary and anonymous. No names or any personal data that could directly identify participants will be collected. Responses will be used exclusively for academic research purposes and treated confidentially, in accordance with the data protection principles set out in the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) of the European Union and with international best practices in research ethics.

We deeply appreciate your availability and the time you dedicated to sharing this experience. Your expertise is essential for a better understanding of the reality faced by informal women workers and for contributing to concrete improvements in their living conditions and mobility.
